WHERE THEY PLAY NEXT. Philadelphia at Chicago on Thursday.

Philadelphia, Pa., October 18.—In a game that was full of thrills from start almost to the finish, the Philadelphia American League champions this afternoon administered a crushing defeat to the Chicago National League champions before more than 24,000 persons. The score was 9 to 3.

It was one of the most exciting games ever played on the American League grounds here. It abounded in sensational fielding and terrific batting. The hero of the afternoon, who shone as brilliantly in his department of the game as did Bender in yesterday's contest, was Eddie Collins, the star second baseman of the home team. This former captain of the Columbia University nine, several times electrified the crowd by his sensational work. The score books show that in his five turns at the plate he reached first every time by making three hits, two of them doubles, receiving a base on balls and making a force play. He scored two runs and sent two home, accepted ten chances without an error, figured in two sensational plays that stopped Chicago from running the bases, and last but not least, the champion base runner stole twice on the king of National League backstops, Kling.

Mordecai Brown kept Collins as close as he could to first base bag. In the sixth inning, Collins outgassed the Chicago battery three times. Brown pitched three wild balls for Kling to line the ball to second, but each time Collins appeared to divine the play and waited. Then he made his dash, and went into the bag feet first as a perfect throw reached the bag just an instant too late.

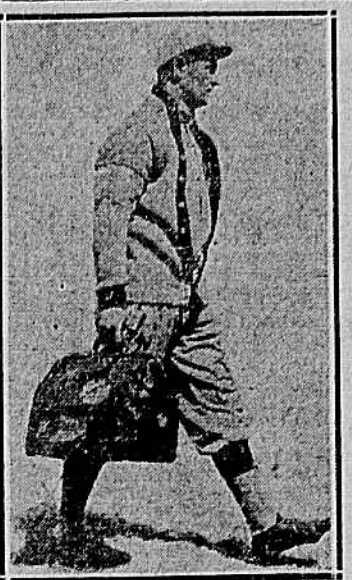

Coombs Is Erratic. Coombs pitched a most erratic game, giving nine bases on balls. He got into trouble in the first inning by giving two of the first three men up bases on balls. He got away with the inning with but one run against his team. At several other stages of the contest, he was in trouble, but the brilliant work of the men behind him pulled him out of difficulties. He seemed to show better form when the bases were occupied than when the bags were clear. This is shown by the fact that Chicago had fourteen men left on the bases. Chicago's inside play did not seem to be in working order, for with the men on the bases and Coombs unsteady, some sharp piece of fielding would break up the inning after there was every prospect of a score.

Mordecai Brown pitched fairly good ball in the early stages of the game, and was quite steady. The Philadelphiaans began to touch him up in the third inning, and in the seventh he was hit to all corners of the field. Nine men went to the bat in this inning and scored six runs on three doubles, two singles and a base on balls, an error and a sacrifice.

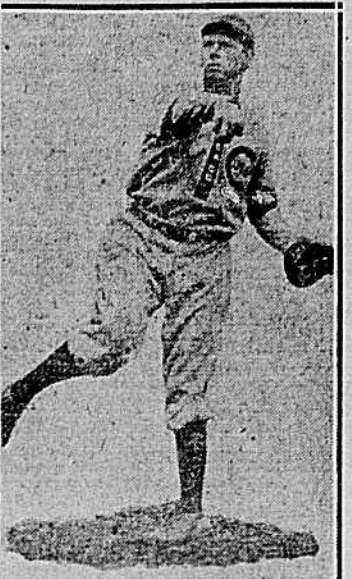

After that inning he was taken out, and was succeeded by Richie. In the seven innings he pitched the "White Elephant" hit him thirteen times, for a total of seventeen bases.

First Run Scored. Chicago scored its first run at the beginning of the game. After Sheekard had received a base on balls and was forced out by Schulte, Hoffman was given four balls. Chance's single niled the bases, and Schulte scored on Zimmerman's long sacrifice fly.

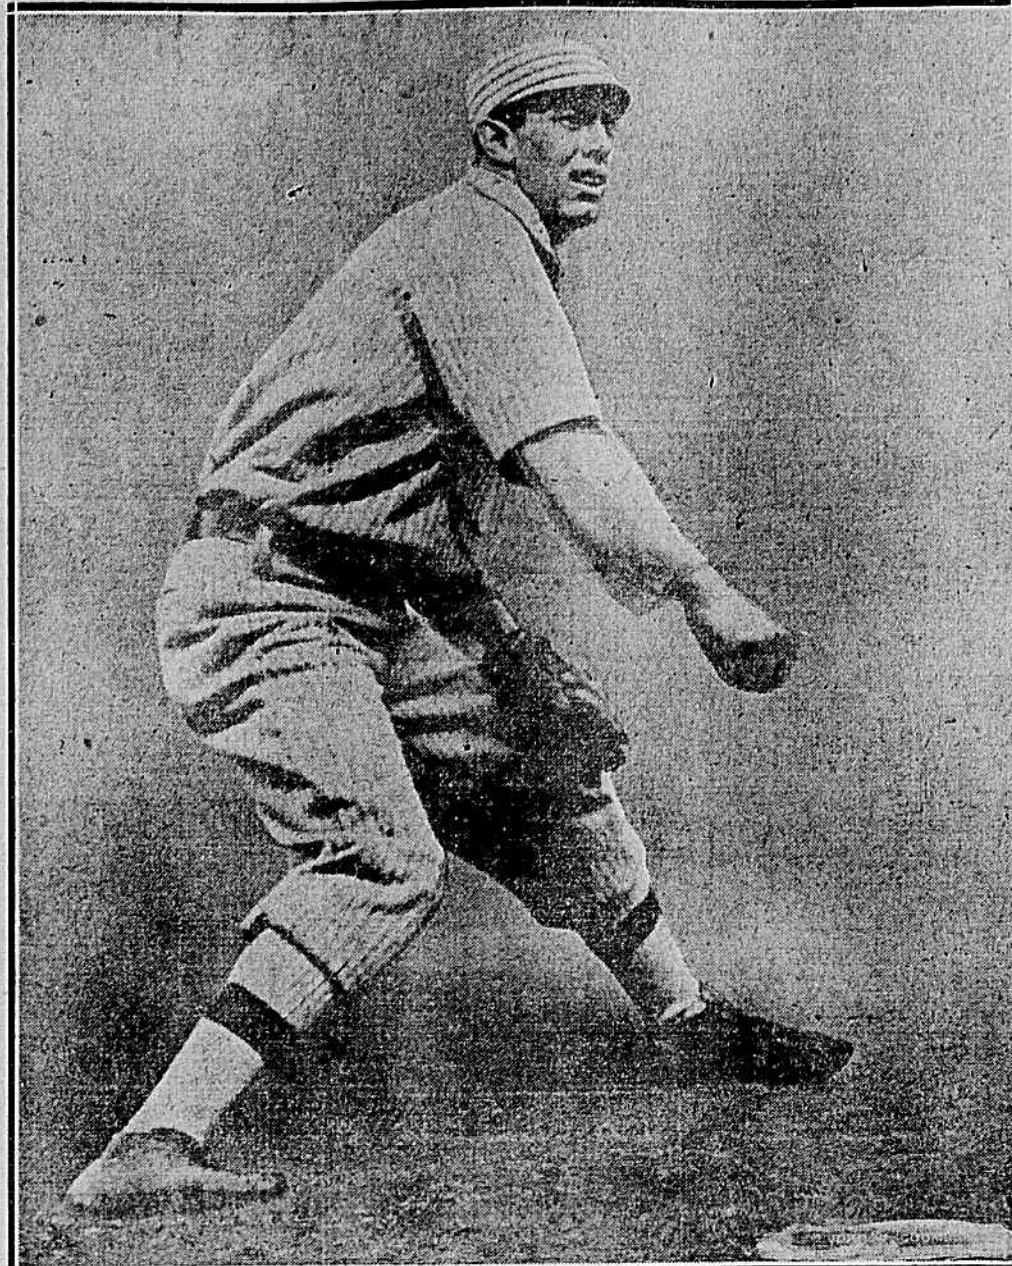

Fast double plays ended the chances either team had to score in the second inning.

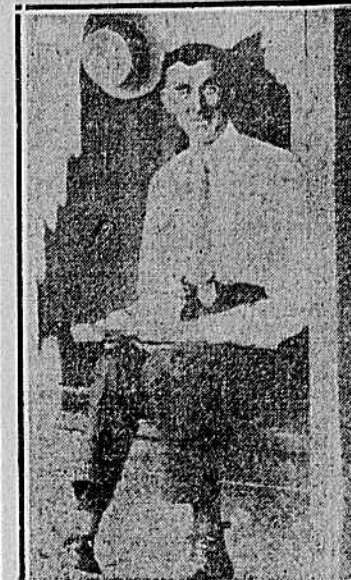

CHANCE, Cubs' manager and first baseman, who says he will yet win championship.

MORDECAI BROWN, three-fingered pitcher, on whom Chance depended, but who was batted out of the box by Athletics' sluggers.

JOHN COOMBS, twirler, who yesterday led Mackmen to victory.

CONNIE MACK, smiling again. In one of his favorite poses while watching his pennant winners play ball.

HARRY DAVIS, first baseman and captain of the Athletics. Short on talk, but long on ball playing.

OFFENSIVE GAME SHOWS STRENGTH OF THE MACKMEN

GREAT SUPPORT GIVET TO COOMBS

Eddie Collins Proves Particular Star and Murphy Contributes Feature Play—Brown Does Not Come Up to Expectations—Seventh Is Fatal Inning.

BY "TY" COBB. (Copyright, 1910, by the Philadelphia Press Company.)

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Philadelphia, Pa., October 18.—In one of the most spectacular baseball games which has yet been played in a world's series, spectacular because it truly showed the remarkable offensive strength of the Athletics, the American League champions gave the great Chicago National League team a severe drubbing this afternoon. The score was 9 to 3.

The fatal inning yesterday was that notorious seventh, when one team or the other invariably makes a cluster of runs. In that one period the Mackmen made six juicy runs, which put them on easy street, and sent the great Mordecai Brown to the bench. Until that inning the game had been fairly close, with Coombs a little unsteady, but having gilt-edged support by the infield. Collins especially doing some work which fairly startled the Cubs.

Brown did not come up to expectations. He started out fairly well, but he seemed to depend too much upon a curve ball, and as the game progressed the Mackmen found that they were hitting more than their liking, finally pounding him for the runs which made the game safe in that seventh.

Eddie Collins was the particular star to-day. The grand little second sacker outgassed Johnny Kling, twice, and pilfered second, which showed that after all a man like Collins, who gets the start and has the speed and the ability to slide, can pilfer bases on the man who has been touted as the best the National League could produce.

Feature Play of Game. Danny Murphy's feature play, a beautiful throw to the plate, after catching a fly from Chance's bat, when the bases were populated with three Cubs, getting Brown, who lost courage, to try to score. The ball came to Thomas on a single bound, and it was easy for him to touch the miner, who made a foolish slide.

The hitting of Collins, who had two doubles and a single, by Harry Davis, Strunk, Murphy, Thomas and Lord was timely, and each of them played some part in getting runs for the Athletics.

I certainly consider that the wonderful offensive of the Athletics to-day will long live in the history of world's series, as the greatest yet uncorred. The Mackmen will stand out as being one of the most dangerous teams of the world's series. Jack had good control of his curve ball, but his fast ones shot wide of the plate. It is just possible that he should have been signaled for more curves in the early part of the game.

I think the most important part of the game was that wonderful seventh inning. Collins, who had been hitting good up until that inning, frightened Brown, who worked mighty hard to retire him. Eddie would not be fooled by the mine's quick-breaking curves, and succeeded in walking. Right here it might be said that Collins seemed the man the Cubs were most anxious to get.

Baker missed two chances to sacrifice Collins, and then hit a terrific low line drive, past Chance. Eddie easily reached third, there being no attempt made by Schulte to throw him out.

At this stage of the game, Brown seemed to be making the mistake of trying to curve too many balls. Harry Davis divined this, and as the Cub twirler hooked up, he pulled it into the left field crowd for two bases, scoring Collins. Baker reached third, and Davis second, on the throw in.

Murphy Hits First One. Danny Murphy's feature play, a beautiful throw to the plate, after catching a fly from Chance's bat, when the bases were populated with three Cubs, getting Brown, who lost courage, to try to score. The ball came to Thomas on a single bound, and it was easy for him to touch the miner, who made a foolish slide.

BRIEF SKETCH OF CONNIE MACK Manager of the Athletic American League Team

Cornelius McGillicuddy, better known to the baseball world as Connie Mack, is unquestionably one of the best managers in baseball at the present time. Endowed with a splendid personality, shrewd, and unfailing judgment, he brings into play the experience gained upon the diamond during the past twenty-five years.

He was born at Brookfield, Mass., in 1862, and began his baseball career with the Meriden, Conn., club in 1884. The following two years found him playing for Hartford, Conn. The latter part of the season of 1886 he joined the Washington club, playing in that city in 1889-'97-'98 and '99. Buffalo found him in its baseball ranks in 1890.

In 1901 he transferred his Milwaukee franchise to Philadelphia and organized the Athletics in the American League. His success here is of too recent date to need repetition in this sketch.

BRIEF SKETCH OF FRANK CHANCE Manager of the Chicago National League Team

Frank L. Chance, the great captain, manager and first baseman of the Chicago National League Club, was originally a catcher, and a great one. He is a college graduate.

He was born September 9, 1877, in Fresno county, Cal., and learned to play ball while attending school. From 1892 to 1896 he attended the Washington College, California, and the Dental College at San Francisco. He obtained the degree of doctor of dental science, and qualified to practice as such. Not caring particularly for the sedentary life of his profession, he took to baseball. He was playing with a local team at Fresno, Cal., where he was seen by the veteran Cal McVey, of the famous Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1890, and on his recommendation the Chicago Club made Chance a liberal offer to join its team in 1898.

OHIO CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY CINCINNATI

Cincinnati National League baseball team by defeating the Cleveland Americans 5 to 3 to-day, won the post-season series between the two teams for the championship of Ohio.

Falkenberg pitched gilt-edged ball until the sixth inning, when six hits allowed Cincinnati to take the lead by scoring five runs.

In the fourth, Cleveland had made four runs, by pounding Suggs, who Cleveland tied it up in the seventh, and in the Cincinnati half, the locals went ahead again by scoring two more runs. They added one to this in the eighth.

Kaler, who relieved Falkenberg, served only three men, walking all of them. Mitchell, who pitched the last two innings, was also wild. Gaspar, who relieved Suggs, was hit rather freely, but he managed to keep the hits well scattered. Lobert's triple in the sixth, with two men on bases, was the feature.

GIANTS EASILY WIN FROM HIGHLANDERS

Post-Season Series. Won. Lost. P.C. Giants 3 1 .750 Highlanders 1 3 .250

New York, October 18.—Christy Mathewson was an unsolvable problem to the Highlanders to-day, and the Giants had no trouble in winning the fifth game of the post-season series 5 to 1. The series now stands: New York Nationals, 3; Americans, 1; tied, 1.

Devere brought in the Giants' first run, with a high drive into the left field bleachers for the circuit. After two men were out in the second inning, Myers got a lucky infield hit, and Mathewson walked to first on four wide ones. Devere doubled to right, scoring Myers, and Doyle followed with a drive which rattled the ball against the centre field fence. Doyle was across the plate before the ball reached the diamond.

The Highlanders garnered their only run in the seventh inning on a single by Knight and a wild pitch by Mathewson and Doyle's error. Hhe score:
